technologist. Now you know about the basic duties of a radiologic technologist. It's clear that patients benefit from the work of these medical professionals, but they're also reaping the rewards that come with being a radiologic technologist. Mammography may not be as effective in these cases. Since MRIs do not use radiation, they may be used to screen women younger than 40 and to increase the number of screenings per year for women at high risk for breast cancer. Although it has distinct advantages over mammography, breast MRI also has potential limitations. For example, it is not always able to distinguish the difference
